Saddam Hussein Trial Continues:

- Near the start of May 22's session of trial, an attorney for the former Iraqi president was thrown out of the courtroom only minutes after she had been readmitted following her ejection in April. Bushra Khalil had previously been thrown out of the courtroom after holding up pictures that she said showed US troops abusing Iraqi prisoners at Abu Ghraib prison. She did so while saying to Hussein, "Look what they are doing to your country." On May 22, Khalil was removed from the Iraqi Special Tribunal after ignoring the chief judge's admonition to remain silent. The judge, Raouf Abdel-Rahman, told her she would need to behave properly this time and remain silent. Khalil refused and removed her robe, throwing it in the direction of the judge. Two guards then took her out of the courtroom. The trial began on October 19 last year and a US official close to the proceedings said Monday he expected a verdict by the end of July or early August. Saddam and his co-defendants could face the death penalty if found guilty of the killings of 148 Shiite villagers after a failed assassination attempt against the ousted dictator in Dujail in 1982.

[8.] Strengthen Public Understanding of Coalition Efforts and Public Isolation of the Insurgents – Developments

Strategic Communications:

- Jordan arrested a member of Al Qaida in Iraq (AQI) and broadcast the member's confessions on state television on the evening of May 23. Ziad Khalaf al-Kerbouly confessed to hijacking trucks, killing four Iraqi soldiers, and kidnapping two employees of the Moroccan Embassy in Baghdad, who were later killed after he handed them over to his superiors. He also said that he worked as an Iraqi customs agent working along the western border with Jordan, giving him the opportunity to know who was entering and leaving Iraq and killing those whom he chose for the purpose of benefiting Al Qaida. His confession was without emotion and made public the mentality of members of AQI. Al Arabiya television said Kerbouly was captured in Iraq by Jordanian intelligence agents, carried across the border and arrested at the Queen Alia International Airport near Amman. Though the Jordanian government called Kerbouly a high-ranking official within AQI, the member's own account portrayed him as a simple foot soldier. However, AQI has since denied Kerbouly's involvement in the militant organization, saying in a statement posted to an Islamic website on May 24, "we of al-Qaida in Iraq want to point out that we don't even know the person shown on Jordanian television."

[8.] Strengthen Public Understanding of Coalition Efforts and Public Isolation of the Insurgents – Developments

This is a significant development and I would like to congratulate Prime Minister Nuri al Maliki, his government, all political groupings involved and the Iraqi people. The EU is ready to engage with the new government in supporting efforts of national reconciliation and reconstruction. I look forward to working with the new government of Iraq.”
- In a press conference on the inauguration of the national unity government, US Ambassador Khalilzad said that “the future of Iraq will set the course of the future of the Greater Middle East. The future of this region will determine the future of the world over the next century. I therefore call upon the international community to join us in helping to support the democratically elected government of Iraq in its important work.”

Slide 11:

- The chart shows average daily power production in megawatt hours (MWh). 120,000 MWh goal equates to 20 hours at 6000 MW average supplied load or 24 hours at 5000 MW average supply load. Currently supplies are not much improved over last year when judged by hours of power, but this is due in part to an influx of new appliances. This has dramatically altered demand and diluted the effect of increased generation capacity on actual results.
